Lee, was an impostor; that he never was a colonel, captain, or any other officer, as he alleged, of the confederate a: my, but that he was for several years a convict in the New York state penitentiary; that he would have married one of Kentucky's fair daughters, but was prevented by the interposiion of Gen. How a Coachman Lost $300, and How HE GOT A WIFE AND $4,000 .- Mattituck, L. I., is a neat little village. It is a summer resort for retired gentlemen. A well-known New York gentleman has a splendid country seat there. A short time ago he hired a farm hand named Mike Hart. He had in his employ a coachman named Thomas Burgess. Thomas was good looking, neat, and sprightly. The New York gentleman had a niece, who was sought by many wealthy young men, but they failed to make any impression on her. Her uncle often advised with her, but she was not to be influ-enced. Her uncle did not know that she was namored of Thomas. As her uncle pressed the suit of a certain young man, Kate and Thomas concluded that the sooner they were made one the better. Thomas had $300 saved up. He drew it from the bank, revealed his plans to Hart, and placed the money in his trunk. Hart appropriated the money, and also a silver watch to his own use, and left for parts unknown. This loss dampened Thomas' ardor, but Kate was equal to the emergency. Thomas proposed a postponement of the marriage for want of funds. Kate objected, and produced $4,000 Together they proceeded to Cutchoque, where the Rev. Mr. Young made them man and wife. The uncle is very anxious to see them, and no doubt Thomas would be pleased to see Hart.

the question of compulsory education. It is said that 16,000 children in that state between the ages of four and sixteen do not attend school at all, and the advocates of the new law think it is a state of things which should be remedied. They are all certainly right, and it is only a question of ways and means.

Sir Toby reports the case of a good little boy, whose pavents encouraged his habit of early retiring by permitting him to take cake to bed with him. One evening he astonished his affectionate mother by the following prayer:

her to the house of a friend, to whom she detailed all the circumstances. During the time the villains were in her house several of them must have dropped their masks, for she distinctly recognized three of them. A visit to the scene of the murder the following morning fully correborated all the poor woman had stated; the house had been reduced to ashes and the bodies of these murdered charred beyond recognition. But the law, in this case at least, has partly averaged the bloody transaction. Two of the perpetrators suffered the extreme tenalty on the gallows at Hender-onville on Friday of last week, and the third was respited until October. In addition three other ac-complices in prison, will probably meet the punishment their crime merits. In his western costume from day to day he visited the several objective points exciting, wherever he went, considerable carisity as to who he was and where he came frem. Everybody was asking, "Who is he?" Some said he was Buffalo Bill, and some said he wasn't, and he was finally set down as his partner, the famous Texas Jack, who had just arrived to take charge of the great buffalo hunt that did not come off. So settled was this opin-ion that a couple of back proprietors stopped him and asked him to settle a dispute between them about the source of a certain river in Texas. On Goat Island he was accosted by a Boston lady with the inquiry, "Now, do you really live all alone out in the woods, with no shelter but the leafy branches or the rocky esves." "No, madam." he replied, "I have two squaws." The lady passed on soliloquizing on the inhumanity of man to woman. On another day an equally impertinent lady inquired "why it was that all these wild Western men always were long hair." The reply demanding "if she ever knew an in-dividual to be baid who were very long hair," satisfied her, and she passed quietly along. But the climax was reached by an individual who upbraided the Texan ranger for the non-fulfillment of a contract to furnish three buffalo

a New York boarding house landlady, but the tollowing unique case is reported to-day. A man and woman, calling themselves Mr. and Mrs. James, engaged board, about a week ago, with Mrs. Annette Hardy, 561 Broome street. This morning two unknown men called and asked to see Mr. and Mrs. James, and were shown into the parlor, where they were soon after joined by the above parties, who appeared delighted to see them, and immediately sent out for some liquor. Upon receiving the liquor, the party asked Mrs. Hardy to join them, which she did. She was not long in the parlor when she was bound by the visitors, and, upon her crying out, they gagged her. The servant, Mary Armstrong, hearing the cry, came to see what was the matter, and was treated in a like manner. The thieves then collected many articles, with which they escaped, Mr. and Mrs. James going with them. The total value of the property stolen is stated at $1,000.

A MAD Dog's VICTIM-Terrible Death of a Young Woman .- An inquest was held y sterday

in the case of Sarah Howe, aged 38 years, of 132d street and 7th avenue, whose death was caused by hydrophobia, as certified to by her medical attendant. The husband testified that about seven weeks ago a dog belonging to a neighbor entered their yard and continued to run around wildly for some time. The deceased happened to be throwing out some water, when the animal sprang at her throat and clung to her until removed by force. A jagged wound had been inflicted, which bled slightly, and healed up without occasioning any disagreeable symp toms. The scar remained, and occasionally throbbed, but did not give pain. The lady decmed herself quite well until Friday last, when the alarming and terrible characteristics of the disease manifested themselves. Doctors were summoned, but the utmost medical skill proved insufficient to save her life, and she died in great agony on Wednesday. A suitable ver dict was rendered by the jury .- N. Y. Star. 19th

At last accounts he thought fishselling more pleasant than wife-killing, and doesn't seem, altogether, to enjoy the "situation."
